

Sclerotherapy

Sclerotherapy is a procedure correcting small subcutaneous or intradermal varicose veins during which a sclerosing agent is injected to a vein by a fine needle.

The sclerotherapy procedure is a fee-based service, the price of which is determined by the number of varicose veins. The patient may immediately book a fee-based appointment for consultation (if a general practitioner's referral letter is not required) or a scheduled appointment which requires a general practitioner's referral letter.
