

Botulinum toxin therapy for hypersalivation

The treatment is performed under ultrasound guidance, where a thin needle is used to administer the medication into three different salivary glands.